“Even though Republicans failed in their effort to establish an effective and durable organization in the South, they nevertheless emerged from the era of reconstruction in a powerful position . . . , [and] they found a large number of southern Democrats remarkably easy to work with. . . . The Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, which could have been adopted only under the conditions of radical reconstruction, make the blunders of that era . . . dwindle into insignificance.”

Kenneth M. Stampp, historian, The Era of Reconstruction, 1865–1877, published in 1965

“Whether measured by the dreams inspired by emancipation or the more limited goals of securing blacks’ rights . . . , Reconstruction must be judged a failure.

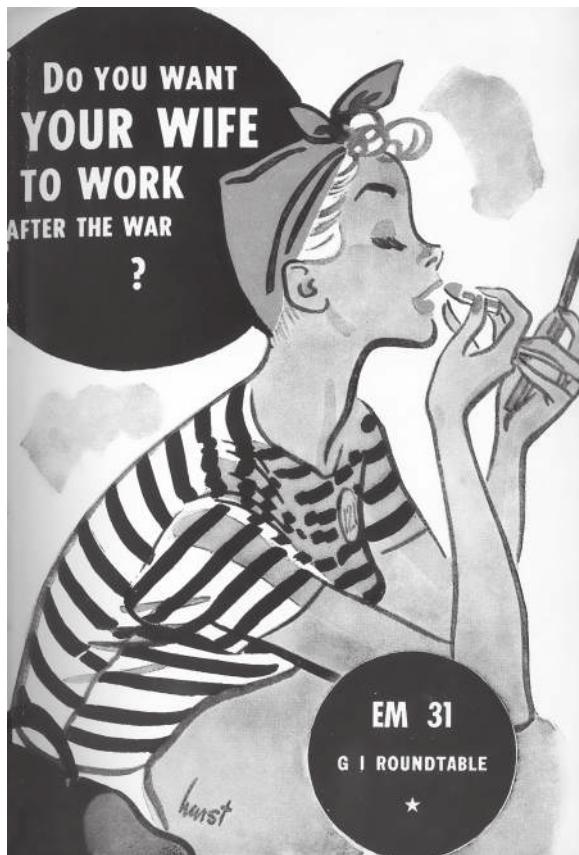

“. . . For the nation as a whole, the collapse of Reconstruction was a tragedy that deeply affected the course of its development. If racism contributed to the undoing of Reconstruction, so also Reconstruction’s demise . . . accelerated racism’s spread, until by the early twentieth century it pervaded the nation’s culture and politics.”

Eric Foner, historian, A Short History of Reconstruction: 1863–1877,
published in 1990

Source: “This is How I Keep House,” McCall’s magazine, 1949

Bringing a new baby into a tiny city apartment, Helen Eckhoff says, taught her as nothing else could the importance of good housekeeping equipment and careful planning before and after a baby arrives. When she and [her husband] Bob discovered, shortly after moving to [a suburb], that they were going to have a second child they began planning for it months in advance. . . .

One of Helen’s greatest joys in her new home is the washing machine, which takes care of the family’s regular laundry . . . and is invaluable for all the slip covers, curtains, etc., that Helen plans to have spic and span before the baby comes. . . .

Besides her house cleaning economies she saves time for the weekend by carefully planning her Saturday baking and by preparing casserole dishes and quick refrigerator desserts. “It means” she says, “that Bob and I have just about as much social life as we ever did. Naturally I don’t gad about, but there’s always time to have people over. On Saturday night we usually have a television party. Refreshments are simple and we don’t use many dishes so it’s just as relaxing for me as for the guests.”

Document 5

Source: William H. Whyte, Jr., The Organization Man, 1956

This book is about the organization man. . . . [Organization men] are not the workers, nor are they the white-collar people in the usual, clerk sense of the word. These people only work for The Organization. The ones I am talking about belong to it as well. They are the ones of our middle class who have left home, spiritually as well as physically, to take the vows of organization life, and it is they who are the mind and soul of our great self-perpetuating institutions. . . .

They are all, as they so often put it, in the same boat. Listen to them talk to each other over the front lawns of their suburbia and you cannot help but be struck by how well they grasp the common denominators which bind them. . . . They are wry about it, to be sure; they talk of the “treadmill,” the “rat race,” of the inability to control one’s direction. But they have no great sense of plight; between themselves and organization they believe they see an ultimate harmony. . . .

NATIONAL SYSTEM OF INTERSTATE AND DEFENSE HIGHWAYS, AS OF JUNE, 1958

Document 7

Source: A. Q. Mowbray, journalist, Road to Ruin, 1969

[An engineering firm] laid out a freeway system for the city of Nashville. . . . [Interstate Route 40], instead of coming straight into the city, would swing north on a wide loop through the center of the Negro community in North Nashville, where it would wipe out Negro homes and churches, slice through a Negro college complex, and run along the main business street for sixteen blocks, wiping out all the Negro-owned businesses on one side of the street and isolating those on the other side from their customers. Some 650 homes, 27 apartment buildings, and several churches would be pounded into rubble. Isolation of the ghetto would be increased by the creation of fifty dead-end streets along the course of the expressway.
